

WASHINGTON LETTER.

After Inauguration Senate to Meet in Extra Session.

Investigation of the Standard Oil Company Recommended by President to Begin at Once.

OTHER ITEMS OF INTEREST.

(Special to THE REPUBLICAN.)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28, 1905.

The Senate has been called in extra session to convene immediately after the fourth of March. Its presence will be necessary to confirm such appointments as the President about that time will make. There will be at least one new member of the cabinet, a new Ambassador to Great Britain, Hon. Whitelaw Reid, and probably two or three others, with numerous minor appointments.

Investigation of the Standard Oil Company recommended by the President in the unequivocal command to "begin at once, go to the bottom and report early" is going to prove a test of strength of the United States Government that has seldom been equalled. The Standard Oil Company is one of the most powerful industrial and financial institutions in the world with ramifying interests in banks, railroads, lands and great insurance companies, and when the United States undertakes to investigate this company it is not to be imagined where the work will end. The resolution, however introduced by Representative Campbell, of Kansas, and which has given that heretofore obscure young man fame in a single night, appeals to the popular imagination already quickened by the magazine and newspaper articles that claim to have been expositions of the condition in the great trust organizations. Mr. Campbell is insistent for criminal prosecution of the company, and in response to all interviews asserts that he has the material in hand to prove every charge which he made before Commissioner of Corporations Garfield, and that these, he believes, will make action by the Department of Justice an imperative requirement. Whatever the end of this investigation, and no average mind can begin to see the end, Mr. Campbell has set for Government the biggest task it has undertaken and though the House, without respect to party, was eager to adopt the resolution offered by him it is believed that the party issues of the next campaign may be drawn on this very issue.

At this writing the closing arguments in the tedious impeachment proceedings against Judge Swaye are being made, and Congress and the people breathe a sigh of relief that the affair will soon be over. Never, perhaps on any business has the senate been more closely confined for a longer time. Constituted as a court every lawyer among the Senators, and the majority of the Senators are of that profession, felt the necessity of hearing all of the testimony which they were to consider in their decision. The witnesses have been for the most part uninteresting, and the testimony has been painfully wearisome. Realizing the mass of work that had accumulated and was waiting to be done, the Senators have chafed under the tedious taking of testimony and have been fairly free in their self-denouncement for having so blithely undertaken the business at this time.

An amendment in the army appropriation bill covers the question of the pay of General Miles, who at present receives the full amount of a lieutenant general. The effect of the agreement is to give him the full retired pay without reference to the compensation he may receive for serving on the staff of the Governor of Massachusetts. The public is glad to be rid of this much-mooted question at last, even if it does reduce the General's income.

Notice

To the members of Farmer's union, district No. 25. The union will meet at 2 p. m. Saturday, before the second Sunday in March, with the following program:

1st. Is it profitable to raise scrub stock? If not, what then?—by E. P. Stevens.

2nd. Shall we continue our present organization or unite with another?—by M. Stetler.

3rd. Shall we continue to purchase commercial fertilizer? If so, from whom?—by C. W. Stevens and T. R. Black.

4th. Shall we limit the acreage of tobacco?—by Warren Taylor.

All are invited, and asked to participate. Meet at 2:00 p. m.

PHILIPPINE NEWS

By a Former Ohio County Young Man Who Is Teaching There.

Dumalog, Panay, Jan. 7, 1905.

Dear Editor and Friends:—Hoping you may find interest in our work over here I can send you the latest news of our school. We have, with two sub-schools, an enrollment of over five hundred pupils, and expect to bring this number to six or seven hundred before April vacation. I have only three assistants so you can see how much overworked we are. Also, it is next to impossible for the Board of Education to supply the constantly increasing demand for books. We are learning a few good songs and there seems a decided talent for music and drawing.

A man recently had some dispute in the hills about someone's chicken. He was carried into town a few hours after. The blood had clotted nicely. The attending surgeon washed away part of the blood and put leaves over the wounds. Under his skillful care the patient is recovering. He is sleeping on a bamboo floor under a house. I suppose the owner has the chicken.

On Sunday morning every one goes to church, the women kneeling in front during all the service or maybe sitting on their heels part of the time. The men in the rear alternately kneel on their handkerchiefs or standing, as the service may require. There are two benches for the President and nobles, of course including "maestros" when they attend.

Our market day is Sunday and there are many cock fights in the afternoon, with much drinking of "tuba" and cheering but very rarely a drunk.

Our richly clad mountains, heavily capped with fogs and clouds, when lighted by a lurid tropical sun, show many beautiful colors and rest and please the wearied eye, but when these fogs descend and wrap you in chill humidity and wring every joint with pain, then these mist-hung scenes lose their charm and you long for the clear sky, the blazing sun, and the dry air of the plains. I think colds and rheumatism hurt worse near the equator.

Hoping I have not wearied you I shall promise you a more newsy letter when I have drier days.

Having been appointed Chairman of the Prohibition party in Ohio county, Ky., by the State Board at Paducah, I hereby most respectfully and earnestly solicit all who are either directly or indirectly interested in the success of this important work to meet at convention at Hartford on the 25th day of March, 1905, for the purpose of organizing and selecting candidates to represent us in the coming November election.

DENOUNCED MORMONS.

Senator Kearns Pays Respect to Their Church.

Declares that It Has Violated the Statehood Compact.

Washington, Feb. 28.—In the Senate to-day Senator Kearns, Republican from Utah, made a sensational speech. He said that he was on the eve of retirement from the body and that there were some words of warning and explanation that were in his heart, and to which he must give utterance.

He then made an attack on the Mormon church, and hierarchy, in which he declared that they were traitors to the Government, and deserved to be put down with the strong hand. He said that Utah secured Statehood by entering into a solemn compact with the rest of the people of the United States and the States of which the Union is composed, to discountenance and suppress the practice of polygamy. This compact was made by the leaders of the Mormon church and accepted by the entire body, and it has been willfully and frequently broken. The practice of polygamy, he said, was open, and shameless, and the men who have a plurality of wives do not suffer in the respect of the Mormon portion of the community on that account. Officials of the State are polygamists, officials of the districts and counties are polygamists, and Representatives and Senators elected to the Congress of the United States, are polygamists, and no apostle of the Mormon church has publicly or privately protested against the violation of the compact which was entered into by the Mormon church for the suppressing of this infamous practice.

EXTREME PENALTY

Given A. T. Nall For Improper Proposal to Mrs. Ward.

"We the jury find the defendant guilty and fix his punishment at a fine of $50," was the verdict of the jury in the case of the Commonwealth against A. T. Nall, charged with using insulting language or making an improper proposal to Mrs. Inez Ward.

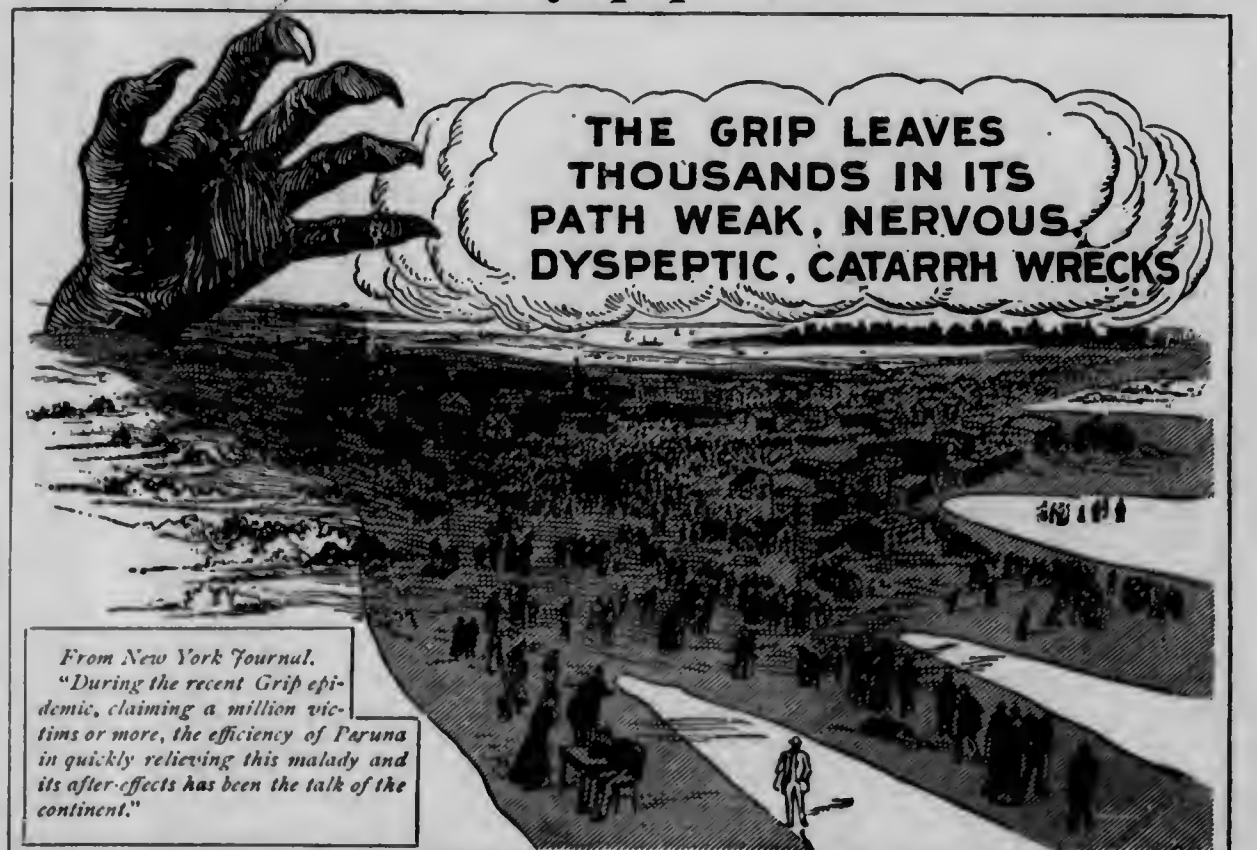

Nall conducts a saloon on the corner of Center street and Apple Alley and Mrs. Ward is keeping a boarding house on the same block. She said when testifying in the trial: "I have lived in Hartford since last April; have known Nall only a short time; have known of him a long time. I was passing his saloon on my way home about three weeks ago, it was about ten o'clock in the forenoon. Just as I was about opposite the entrance door to the saloon, Nall stepped from the doorway to the pavement nearly in front of me and asked me if he could see me privately that evening. He had been hanging around my front door for a long time, and has in the night time looked through the glass front door beside the blind. I understood his language, taken in connection with his conduct, to be insulting, and an improper proposal to me."

This is in brief the evidence on which the above verdict was based. Nall never took the witness stand nor introduced a witness in his own behalf.

The court room was fairly full at the hearing of the case, which has certainly created quite a sensation in Hartford, and most everyone present approved the verdict and pronounced it a just one and not a few were heard to remark that a more severe punishment should be provided in such cases.

The Grip Leaves Thousands in its Path Weak, Nervous, Dyspeptic, Catarrh Wrecks.

From New York Journal.
"During the recent Grip epidemic, claiming a million victims or more, the efficiency of Peruna in quickly relieving this malady and its after-effects has been the talk of the continent."

LIKE A DEMON grip has crossed our country, leaving behind scores of physical wrecks.

Victims of catarrh of the head, catarrh of the throat, catarrh of the lungs, catarrh of the stomach, catarrh of the kidneys, catarrh of the pelvic organs, are to be counted by hundreds of thousands. Grip is epidemic catarrh, and sows the seed of chronic catarrh within the system.

This is so true that few grip sufferers are able to make a complete recovery until they have used Peruna.

Never in the history of medicine has a remedy received such unqualified and universal eulogies as Peruna.

A New York Alderman's Experience.

Hon. Joseph A. Flinn, alderman Fifth District, writes from 104 Christopher street, New York City, as follows:

"When a pestilence overtakes our people we take precaution as a nation to preserve the citizens against the dread disease.

"La grippe has entered thousands of our homes this fall, and I noticed that the people who used Peruna were quickly restored, while those who depended on doctor's prescriptions, spent weeks in recovering, leaving them weak and emaciated.

"I had a slight attack of la grippe and at once took Peruna, which drove the disease out of my system in a few days and did not hinder me from pursuing my daily work.

"I should like to see our Board of Health give it official recognition and have it used generally among our poor sick people in Greater New York."

Joseph A. Flinn.
D. L. Wallace, a charter member of the International Barber's Union, writes from 15 Western avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.:

"Following a severe attack of la grippe I seemed to be affected badly all over. I suffered with a severe headache, indigestion and numerous ills, so I could neither eat nor sleep, and I thought I would give up my work, which I could not afford to do.

"One of my customers who was greatly helped by Peruna advised me to try it, and I procured a bottle the same day. I used it faithfully and felt a marked improvement. During the next two months I took five bottles, and then felt splendid. Now my head is clear, my nerves steady, I enjoy food, and rest well. Peruna has been worth a dollar a dose to me."

Mr. O. H. Perry, Atchison, Kansas, writes:

"Again, after repeated trials of your medicines, Peruna and Manalin, I give this as my expression of the wonderful results of your very valuable medicine in its effects in my case after repeated trials.

"First, it cured me of chronic bronchitis of fifteen years' standing by using two bottles of Peruna in January, 1894, and no return of it.

"After I was cured of bronchitis I had la grippe every winter for several winters. But, through the use of Peruna, it got gradually weaker in its severity, until it dwindled down to a mere snore for two or three days. Now the snore does not trouble me any more."

O. H. Perry.
A Congressman's Experience.

Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.
Gentlemen—"I am more than satisfied with Peruna, and find it to be an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."

Very respectfully,

George H. White.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.
Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

EXCUSED WITHOUT BOND

Were Clarence and Charley Jones ---Arrested by Misunderstanding of Officers.

At the examining trial of Clarence and Charlie Jones held before Judge Miller last Friday to inquire into the disturbance at Horse Branch the Sunday night preceding, report of which appeared in THE REPUBLICAN last week, quite a different phase of the case developed to that first reported, and the entire trouble or disturbance seems to have occurred by reason of an accidental discharge of a revolver and a few other circumstances misunderstood by the boys as well as the officers who attempted to arrest them.

Their father, an exceedingly nice man, was here at the hearing and took them home with him with the understanding that if the grand jury which convenes next Monday, indicts them, he will at once return them. But as matters have developed there will probably be nothing more done with them.

Notice.

A practical talk will be given at the Y. M. C. A. Rooms to-night at 7 o'clock sharp, to the men and boys of Hartford. "The Editing of a Country Newspaper" will be the subject. It will be discussed by Editor Heber Matthews, of the Hartford Herald. This is the first of a series of practical talks to be given at Hartford. These talks are free and we extend a cordial invitation to all men and boys.

WITNESSED MURDER

Of Elizabeth Gillespie, But Kept Silent,

Did Not Want to See "Jim" Hanged Says an Old Friend of the Convicted Man.

A startling story is afloat at Rising Sun, Ind., which, if confirmed, will solve the mystery of the murder of Elizabeth Gillespie, on December 8, 1903. Her twin brother, James Gillespie, is now in the State Prison at Michigan City serving a life sentence for the murder, and Mrs. Belle Seward and Mr. and Mrs. Myron Barbour are under indictment awaiting trial for alleged participation in the crime.

An old man who lives near the scene of the murder, has, since, the conviction of Jim Gillespie, told several persons that he saw the shooting, and he has described with minute particulars what took place on that dreadful night.

At the time of the trial of Jim Gillespie this man was supposed to have some knowledge of the affair, but he stubbornly refused to give the prosecution any information. He has said that on the evening of the murder he had gone to the public well, a short distance from the Gillespie home. He set down his bucket and just then there was the flash of a gun. He looked up, and saw Jim Gillespie with a shotgun in his hand crossing the street. He is satisfied that Jim saw him, and for a moment the old man thought that Jim would shoot him, but the assassin continued his flight.

The witness says he saw Gillespie enter the Barber gate; and leap over the railing that separates the Barber and the Seward houses, and disappear in the Seward house. If the old man is telling the truth he bears out the theory of the prosecution as to the way in which the young woman was murdered. When asked why he did not tell this story when Gillespie was on trial, he is reported to have said he knew Jim, liked him, and did not want him to be hanged, as he felt he surely would be with such testimony against him. Now that Gillespie is in the penitentiary he does not think that any further harm could be done him.

This alleged witness of the assassination has become very obstinate and has utterly refused to say anything more, even declining to verify his first statement, which was made several times. Many of the citizens believe the story is true, while others are inclined to doubt it. The authorities will, however, sift the story to the bottom, and try to remove the slight element of doubt that still hangs over the most shocking murder in the history of Southern Indiana.

At the trial of "Jim" Gillespie there was no testimony to prove that the assassin had been seen running from the scene of the crime. One witness had heard hurried footsteps and the noise of the click of an iron gate. After the jury had returned a verdict of murder in the first degree every one of the jurymen said that had there been any evidence to show that a man had been actually seen crossing the street from the Gillespie home they would have inflicted the death penalty.

law says that people must examine their mail before leaving the office, and should they receive a piece which is not addressed to them, it must be returned at once. That it is the fault of the post master makes no difference. This law includes newspaper as well as first-class mail. There is a class of curious people everywhere, and they are, as a rule, contemptibly curious about letters and other mail matter which they chance to get hold of. They will open all letters coming into their possession, and often when knowing full well they don't belong to them. They will, after reading the letters, write on the envelope "opened by mistake," and without signing their name drop it back in the post office box at night or during the night when not observed. This class of curious individuals is warned to be careful in the future. If they open hereafter mail which does not belong to them they must sign their name and state why they opened the same, whether by accident or design.

A Confusion of Wives.

Occasionally this excess of wives in Utah leads to amusing consequences, as when one of the Apostles invited a visiting Gentile to dinner. The guest lost the address, and looked up the Apostle in the Dictionary. He observed that his hostess, though she answered to the proper name, seemed unprepared for him, and presently he heard her at the telephone.

"Oh, Emma. Is John living at your house this week? Is he expecting somebody to dinner to-day? Very well. The gentleman will be there in a few minutes."

Then, returning to the stranger, she handed him a paper slip.

"You came to the wrong house, sir. This is the address you want."

On another occasion, a little girl came running into the parlor while a visitor was calling.

"Mamma, mamma, papa wants his suit case packed. He is going to live with Aunt Emma this week."

FUNNY STOCK.

Some of the Freaks on Pennsylvania's Wild Animal Farm.

[St. Nicholas.]

Come good crops or bad, the wild animal farm does a thriving business. Its cosmopolitan population, gathered from Asia, Africa, India, from every clime, do not take kindly to farm work. The camels refuse to plow; no amount of urging will induce the zebras to do the work of horses; nor will the yaks or the sacred cows do the work of ordinary oxen. Actually the farm is a great animal boarding house, with "boarders" from all over the world. The farm, which comprises some 300 acres, is located near Allentown, Pa. Its population last year numbered more than 300 "head" of different kinds of stock, and comprised a large and fairly complete menagerie.

During the summer months the entire population of the wild animal farm travel about the country in the vans of the "Greatest Show on Earth." Early each fall the animals return to their quiet Pennsylvania farm to enjoy a well-earned vacation. It is a great day for the countryside, for miles in all directions, when the circus comes to the country. The great herds of camels, dromedaries, yaks, buffalo, llamas, and the rest, are shipped to the nearest railroad point and paraded across country to their winter quarters. The caravan makes a very pretty picture as it moves slowly along, up hill and down dale, over the quiet country roads.

The winter residents of the wild animal farm are known in the circus as the "led stock." In the cross-country march to the farm it might more correctly be called the "pulled, pushed or hauled stock." The journey is usually very exciting. In the various parades of the Barnum and Bailey Circus throughout the country these same animals will remain perfectly passive in the streets of great cities, no matter how loudly the band may play, the calliope whistle or the small boys shout. But, strange to say, a quiet country lane affects them very differently, and they will balk as only a camel can, shy at the most innocent bush or tree, crash through high fences or hurdle them, and go flying over the surrounding farms, to the consternation of the farmers. The caravan starts on its journey promptly at sunrise, and it is usually late in the day before the farm is reached and the last unruly runaway rounded up and safely stabled.

Water For Cows.

Ordinarily the small cow drinks from six to eight gallons of water in twenty-four hours, and the large cow drinks from seven to nine gallons. There is no fixed measure, as no two cows, even of the same breed, or of the same weight, or on the same rations of the same feed, and yielding practically the same quantity of milk of the same quality, will drink exactly the same quantity of water.

I have one small cow that seems to be satisfied with five gallons of water a day, while another of her weight takes seven gallons. A neighbor has a larger Holstein-Friesian cow that drinks over ten gallons a day, and another quite as large as that takes only eight and one-half gallons.

My experience is that the younger cows require more water, and that there is a decrease each year in the water taken as the cows grow older. In some cases even this does not hold good. A cow out of sorts will drink more or less as she is chilly or feverish.

Indigestion, pasturage, changes in ration, irregularity in feeding and milking, and the amount of exercise are factors that influence the drinking of the milch cow. The character of the food has much influence. Dry-food calls for more water. Succulent food carries its own water largely. The cow on pasture needs less and drinks less water than the cow on dry feed.

In providing a supply of water for a herd, it is well to furnish the water and let the cows measure the drinks for themselves. Then they will get the proper amount at the proper time. Running water and individual drinking vessels in the stalls will solve the problem of water and drinking perfectly.

Nothing will cure indigestion that doesn't digest the food and give the stomach a rest. It isn't necessary to starve yourself in order to rest your stomach—take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It will digest any quantity of all the wholesome food you want to eat while your stomach takes a rest recuperates and grows strong. This wonderful preparation is justly entitled to all of its many remarkable cures. Sold by Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro.

Diamonds in Horse's Skin.

[Hinton (Minn.) Cor. New York Sun.]
Concealing $5,000 worth of diamonds beneath the skin of a Clydesdale stallion, a party of immigrants who recently passed through this city, smuggled the stones through the United States Custom House at New York.

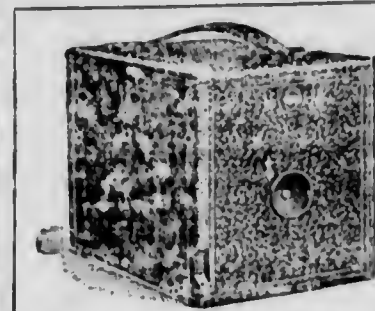

The fraud was discovered by F. L. Reely, a farmer near here. The animal, which had grown lame, was left at his place several weeks ago, the immigrants charging him to take good care of him. When they returned they found the horse was still lame and could not travel.

They took him, paid Reely, and, going to the woods, put a bullet through his head. They took off the skin in a fashion which interested Reely, who was quietly watching. He saw them pick over the inner side of the skin, and after they had left he examined it.

Reely noticed scars, and the inner-side of these seemed to have been carefully scraped. He finally found a half carat diamond in one scar. He cut the hide in small strips, boiled it, and got two more good stones.

THE war cloud has again overshadowed the dove of peace which feigned to soar over Russia et Japan and the "bear" is still being worsted.

THE inauguration of President Roosevelt to-morrow will be the greatest event of the kind ever experienced in the Capitol city. We do not inaugurate such men as he very often.

THE tallest woman in the world is of German descent. She is only twenty-four years of age and is slightly over seven feet tall. An ordinary man can walk erect under her outstretched arms.

THERE seems to be some doubt as to who will get credit for putting the Standard Oil company out of business. Tom Lawson and Kansas are each claiming the honor for starting the ball to rolling.

ACCORDING to Dr. Osler a man is "a has been" after he reaches the age of forty. In the light of his own theory the doctor has been "a has been" for sixteen years. Don't his argument fall flat?

IT is apparent from the overtures made to Commonwealth's Attorney, Allen, by Judge Hargis that he is becoming uneasy lest the Court of Appeals will decide that Fayette county has jurisdiction to try him on the murder charge preferred against him by a grand jury of that county.

AN EFFORT is being made to secure a pardon for Bank-Wrecker McKnight, who was convicted in the Federal Court at Louisville about five years ago. He has twice been denied executive clemency and should be this time. His punishment is conceded to be commensurate with his offense.

There have been but few impeachment charges preferred against United States officials since the organization of the government and still fewer have been sustained by the National Senate.

THOMAS SIMS, a musician of some note, declares that every human being is in tune with some one of the musical keys. He discovered this quaint freak of nature, he claims, by simply experimenting with his own emotions, noting how music in a certain key soothed and in others aroused his emotions. He has tried the experiment on others with the same results.

THE Hartford Herald's attempt to lead the public to believe that THE REPUBLICAN is not in favor of good roads throughout the county is simply a piece of fine spun artifice intended to divert public attention from its declaration that the Fiscal Court of Ohio county must select a Supervisor of roads. We have always favored progress and have on divers occasions pointed out the advantages of well kept public thoroughfares. The most important phase of the good roads question and the one in which the people are most interested is a plan by which the public roads may be made better without burdening them with additional taxes. In other words, the most economical way of improving the roads is what the people favor and THE REPUBLICAN joins with them.

It shall be unlawful for any person or persons, corporation or firm to erect or construct a building of any kind other than brick or stone on any of the following streets or alley in said town, viz: On both sides of Main street beginning at its intersection with Washington street and from thence to and including the Likens livery stable lot on Corner of Main and Union streets, and also to and including the C. J. Rhoads store and dwelling on said Main street, also on both sides of Union street beginning at the intersection of same with Market street and from thence to Peach alley, also on both sides of Market street beginning at its intersection with Union street and from thence to its intersection with Washington street, also on both sides of Center street beginning at its intersection with Market street and from thence to Peach alley.

Sec. 2. Before any person or persons, corporation or firm begins the construction of any building on any of the streets hereinbefore mentioned, they shall file with the City council plans and specification and obtain from said council a permit so to do.

Sec. 3. Any person violating any of the provisions of this article, shall be fined ($10) ten dollars for each offense and each day a building constructed or in the process of construction of material other than that hereinbefore designated is permitted to stand, shall constitute a separate offense.

Sec. 4. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith, are hereby repealed.

Approved March 1, 1905.

VARIOUS COLORS.

Process of Their Production Vividly Described By Apt Illustrations.

Editor REPUBLICAN:—I read with interest in your issue of last week an article under the headline "What Makes the Sky Blue?" If you will indulge me space I shall supplement that article with a brief essay on the constitution of light and the distribution of color.

The man of science would say that light is the vibration of an elastic medium, but as such a technical definition would convey small meaning to those who have given the matter little study, I shall try to illustrate the accepted theory of light in a homely way. Light is a wave motion imparted to the ethereal fluid by an outside energy. That the inter-planetary space, outside of the shell of atmosphere surrounding the planets, are filled with an elastic, jelly-like fluid, termed ether, is now the agreed verdict of science. Every one has observed that when a pebble is dropped into still water a series of small waves is imparted to the water in all directions from the point of the contact with the pebble as the center. The phenomenon we know as sound results from waves in the air, different in no way from the waves in water except for the density of the medium and in the length of the waves. In fact, violent water waves beating against a rough shore communicate their motion to the air so perfectly that we are able to determine their length and intensity from the communicated air waves that reach our ears. Light is ascertained a wave as water is a wave or as sound is a wave, but it requires a far more elastic medium. Light and heat, so intimately, though not absolutely, related, differ only in the length of the waves that produce them. The greatest heat waves we receive from the sun are non-luminous.

A heated iron rod will ignite wood far below the temperature at which it begins to glow, even in the dark, and the fire-fly gives off light in which no sensible degree of heat can be discovered. Of the blistering heat and dazzling light we have from the sun, it can be said with certainty, that we have neither direct from the body. The heat of a tropical sun must travel more than ninety million miles through a temperature many hundred degrees below the freezing point, and the rays of a noonday sun must traverse vast fields of impenetrable darkness. But the sun is an energy communicating tremors to the ethereal ocean which conveys them unchanged across its cold, dark bosom till, meeting resistance in the atmosphere and earth, they develop light and heat. Light waves have been measured by means of delicate instruments, with great accuracy, and it is shown that placed end to end it requires from forty-six to forty-eight thousand of them to make an inch—the number depending upon the color of the light measured. Such is the rapidity with which light waves impinge upon the optic nerve that it absorbs trillions of them in a single second.

As a study in physics color is more fascinating to me at least, than light. In studying the constitution of light the student must trust much to authority, but the problem of color admits of ocular demonstration. No error with reference to the problem of color is more universal perhaps than that of referring color to mat-

Peculiar To Itself

In what it is and what it does—containing the best blood-purifying, alterative and tonic substances and effecting the most radical and permanent cures of all humors and all eruptions, relieving weak, tired, languid feelings, and building up the whole system—is true only of

Hood's Sarsaparilla

No other medicine acts like it; no other medicine has done so much real, substantial good, no other medicine has restored health and strength at so little cost.

"I was troubled with scrofula and came near losing my eyesight. For four months I could not see to do anything. After taking two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla I could see to walk, and when I had taken eight bottles I could see as well as ever." S. A. HAINES, Withers, N. C.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

ter as one of its inherent qualities. That gold would not be yellow or silver white in the absence of light is received by many persons, not as a revelation but as a fanciful absurdity. Light is a wave in a highly elastic medium; color is determined by the length of the light-wave. The longest light-wave is red, the shortest blue, and waves of intermediate lengths develop the intermediate colors. Neither black nor white is a pure color. Black is the absence of light and white is a composite of all the primary colors. The white light of the sun is a skein of many colors, which may be resolved into its primary elements in a very homely way. In the absence of a Nicol's prism, a working substitute may be had in the angled crown piece, or knob of a preserve stand. With this directed towards the sun a lamp will do as well—and the eye pressed close against the glass a little patience and slow turning the glass only are necessary to resolve the light into all the colors of the rainbow. A still better medium, perhaps, is a coal oil lamp. Have the lamp well filled with oil, and while the sun is near the horizon press the eye close against the lamp and view the sun through one side of the lamp. Some patience and carefully shifting your viewpoint may be sometimes necessary to get the best results. When the best position is found horizontal elliptic rings of red and blue appear first and later the intermediate colors. It will no doubt surprise the observer as it did the writer to discover that he had never before held colors in their purity. The art and ingenuity of man have never yet discovered a pigment anywhere approaching the beauty and purity of colors that condescend to expose themselves in a coal oil lamp.

After seeing, in the unequally reflecting surfaces of the homely prisms I have described, the apparently white skein of the sun and lamp unraveled till each strand of color stands alone it is not difficult to see that material objects have no inherent color, but take their color wholly as their atoms intercept given length of light-waves. When the light-waves from the sun reach the outer rim of the earth's atmosphere the long waves pass without being sensibly disturbed through the finely divided matter floating in the air, but which is sufficient to break the continuity of the very short waves and develop the beautiful blue color of the sky. But when the light-waves of the sun reach the observer through the denser atmosphere near the earth, as at sunrise or sunset, the longer light-waves are intercepted, giving rise to the colors red and yellow. The blue of the ocean like that of the sky is due to suspended finely divided matter. This is proven by the blue water of the ocean rarely occurring near the coast, and only at long distances out from the mouths of large rivers that bring down great volumes of detritus. But perhaps the simplest way to demonstrate that color in an inherent property of light and not of matter is to pound a piece of window pane to powder. The powdered mass, into which no foreign element has been introduced, is seen to be white, resulting from numerous reflecting surfaces of unequal power intercepting at once the light-waves of varying lengths and fusing them into the composite color, white.

An explosion in the mine of the United States Coal and Coke Company, at Wilcoe, W. Va., caused the death of over a score of miners.

The Engineering Commission of the Isthmian Canal Commission has laid before the body the first definite plans for the construction of the waterway. They called for a sea-level canal with a bottom width of 150 feet and a minimum water depth of 35 feet at a total estimated cost of $230,500,000. The time for the completion of the work is estimated at from ten to twelve years.

Stock of high-grade oil will be drawn upon from the fields of Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia and Kentucky at the rate of 25,000 barrels a day to be shipped to Japan, that country having placed an order for 10,000,000 gallons of refined oil to take the place of the Russian product. During the past week the pleasant weather had the effect of hastening the completion of wells in the Kentucky and Tennessee fields. Wayne county alone furnished six wells, two of them being seventy-five barrel strikes.

Russia's internal troubles go from bad to worse. In Warsaw a soldier accompanies each policeman to keep him from striking. All the railway systems except one have been placed under martial law. The postal telephone officials threaten to strike. In Riga the officials are unable to cope with the situation. A condition amounting to civil war prevails in the Caucasus. The Government has been forced to grant concessions in Siberia. The autocracy seeks to prevent the convoking of the Zemsky Sober. Evidence accumulates that agitation is more political than economic, and that a general foment may follow in the spring.

Y. M. C. A. State Convention.

In the year 1878 the first State Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association was held at Owensboro and one of the features of the convention recently held there, was the presence of a few of the delegates that were present then. This convention will go down in Kentucky history as being one of the most spiritual conventions ever held and it will also be remembered by the inauguration of some new special features. The first of note was the three normal bible classes of three sessions each under the leadership of Mr. Frank H. Burt, Chicago; Mr. C. C. Michener, New York, and Mr. E. W. Peck, State Secretary, Minnesota. Another was the gymnastic and athletic exhibition held Saturday afternoon.

The music of the Convention was of the highest order led by Mr. Peck, assisted by the Louisville Boys' Orchestra, Henderson male Chorus and Miss Schaeffer, of Louisville. Mr. S. D. Gordon's "Quiet House," The Gospel Railroad Train with Tom Keenan as Engineer, The Section Conferences, Kentucky Field and its Occupancy and the reception and banquet were as much enjoyed and looked forward to as at any previous convention. Sunday morning all the pulpits were occupied by association leaders. The special evangelistic efforts for men and boys led by C. C. Michener at the Temple Theater and B. W. Godfrey at the Third Baptist church resulted in over 50 men and 31 boys declaring their faith in Jesus Christ as Savior.

The speakers who contributed much to the success were Presidents F. W. Hinitt and Acheson, Danville; Frank H. Burt, Chicago, E. W. Peck, Minnesota; C. C. Michener, W. D. Weatherford, G. B. Hodge, Robert Wiedensall, A. G. Knebel, Tom Keenan, Dr. Geo. Fisher, New York, John L. Wheat, Louisville.

The closing session was in charge of State Secretary H. E. Rosevear, which consisted of short speeches on "What Has This Convention Meant to You." At the close all delegates clasped hands, forming an unbroken circle, singing "Blest Be the Tie that Binds." Thus the Twenty-Seventh Annual Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of Kentucky came to a close.

REMARKABLE STORY

Told By a Medium Who Knew That a Man Was Going To Be Shot.

[New York Sun.]

Spiritualists were exchanging experiences last night at the Tuxedo. Several well-known mediums were there, a preacher, two or three Christian Scientists and a few business men. Some of the stories told were first-class ghost tales. Miss Margaret Gaule, of 257 West One Hundred and Thirtieth street, who has given a number of "tests" at the Tuxedo, told this story, which she insisted was true in every particular:

"When I was 15 years old I went to work in a shoe store in Baltimore as a clerk. One day a man, whom I knew by sight as a rich business man, and prominent socially, came into the store to exchange a pair of shoes his wife had purchased the day before and found unsatisfactory. As I was restoring the shoes to the wall-case I heard as sharply and distinctly as if it had been fired close to my ear, a pistol shot. I asked the man if he was in the habit of carrying a revolver. 'No,' said he, very much astonished. Something impelled me to touch again the shoes his wife had worn. Again I heard a shot. It came over me at once, I couldn't explain how, that the man was going to be shot. I told him I didn't want to alarm him, but that I believed he was going to be hurt, maybe shot. Naturally he laughed at me and left the store, telling me I was a foolish girl, and a very extraordinary sort of shoe clerk.

"Next day I read at breakfast that the man had been killed by his wife, shot through the head as he lay in bed, with a derringer she had under her pillow. She had no motive for killing him as far as could be learned, but did it on sudden impulse. It was that experience which had a good deal to do toward making me a medium."

One man present was anxious to see a spirit, to actually behold a ghost.

"That is foolish," said Miss Gaule. "Don't put any faith in mediums who tell you they can materialize spirits out of a cabinet. They are fakery. They know they are not doing business on the square. Materializations of any sort are so uncommon as to be unknown practically. Mediums who pose in darkened rooms and appear to produce spirits from cabinets are almost as bad as women who gull the ignorant and foolish by pretending they have the power of making anybody a medium—at so much the job."

Are You Engaged?

Engaged people should remember, that, after marriage, many quarrels can be avoided, by keeping their digestions in good condition with Electric Bitters. S. A. Brown, of Benningville, S. C., says: "For years, my wife suffered intensely from dyspepsia, complicated, with a torpid liver, until she lost her strength and vigor, and became a mere wreck of her former self. Then she tried Electric Bitters, which helped her at once, and finally made her entirely well. She is now strong and healthy." Z. HUMAN OSTRICH.

Man has a Cast Iron Stomach and Enjoys Making a Meal of Junk.

[Baltimore Herald.]

Eating the pies that mother makes is the best and easiest trick I do. The occasional horseshoe nail to be found in them only gives a relish to the mincemeat that cannot be introduced in any other way. While I cannot look with equanimity upon a hair in the butter, an ounce of broken glass in a Welch rarebit affects me not at all. The possessor of a galvanized stomach and a non-breakable set of molars has an advantage that even the ancient philosophers failed to appreciate." With this as an introduction, Charles Hamorsten proceeded to astonish the group of University of Maryland dental students, for whose benefit he was giving an exhibition of his remarkable accomplishments, by swallowing a half dozen horseshoe nails, several formidable looking screws and a pint of crushed glass. "And I never suffered with the tooth ache in my life," added Hamorsten as he gulped down a half pound of iron filings which he had noisily masticated for the space of half a minute.

An intelligent faced undergraduate arose in the rear of the hall: "Mr. Hamorsten," asked he, "do you find your food nourishing?" "Not especially so," replied the human ostrich. "I eat it because my doctor prescribed it. He said my system needs the iron."

Hamorsten is a young Austrian about whom there is nothing likely to give one the impression that he is a "freak." The cut of his clothes or the contour of his face would never create a belief that he can swallow a pair of spectacles with as little discomfort as an ordinary mortal can dispose of an oyster. But Hamorsten is a philosopher who realizes that a kind Providence gave each man especial gifts, which, if he handles them properly, allow him to excel all others. His benefits are a set of teeth like marble and a stomach for which he needed have no respect at all. Finding that in possession of these things he is somewhat different from other mortals he makes the most of them, and tours the earth as a "human ostrich," and makes a comfortable living.

When the dental students of the University of Maryland heard that he was in Baltimore they decided to learn whether he lived up to his prospectus. So to prove it he gave a performance at the University.

"I have seen men shy at the biscuits their young wives make, but my domestic felicity will never be ruptured in any such way," said Hamorsten. "Cakes that could easily be used as sinkers on fish lines are dead easy for me." As he spoke he picked up an iron railroad spike. Grasping the butt of it in his right hand he close his teeth about its middle. There was a wrench, and the iron spike parted like a piece of macaroni.

"And that," said he, as he laid the piece of split iron down, "is one of the principal differences between yours truly and Mr. Rockefeller. Why, I can even enjoy the sandwiches they serve in country railroad stations." And in view of his performance his audience willingly believed him.

Hamorsten is apparently as strongly built throughout as in his teeth and his stomach. Weights the prospect of lifting which would make an ordinary man shudder he raised high with apparent ease. Iron chains and crowbars he broke over his knee with as little effort as a schoolboy would exert to snap a yardstick. He concluded his performance by drinking, virtually, a glass of water, for he swallowed the glass after the water had disappeared. Of course, he chewed the tumbler into bits before he allowed it to go down his throat.

The would-be dentists were appalled. Suppose they belonged to a race of such men, of what use would dentistry be?

Hamorsten will play a return engagement for the students as soon as his dates make it permissible.

CAPTURE WILD MAN.

Tennessee Wanderer Believed to Have Been a Scout.

A wild man has been captured near Luury, Henderson county, Tenn., in a lonely part of Forked Deer Bottom, after giving his pursuers a hard race.

For some time the negroes of that section have claimed that they could hear a curious noise at night, but the white people paid little attention. They finally claimed they saw a wild man and four or five white men went in search of him. About 11 o'clock the wild man made his appearance, and when spoken to by one of the party, fell flat on the ground and uttered shriek after shriek. He then disappeared in the cane brake.

The party, with lighted lanterns, followed the tracks in the mud and twice got a glimpse of the man. After a long chase the party came to a hollow poplar log that had been felled. Investigation revealed tracks in the log and later the form of a man was discovered in the far end of the log in a stooping position. He was captured and proved to be perfectly harmless. His only covering was a long growth of hair. The man seemed to be rational at times, but had lost his power of speech. In a nick of the tree was found an old Federal cap and in another place was found what appeared to be paper, but on closer examination proved to be writing. It was dated 1832, and was an order to General Grant, but it could not be told who it was from.

It is the general opinion around Luury that the man was a scout during the war and got lost in the bottom and finally became mentally unbalanced and later wild.

COSTLY SHOES.

Lots of People Pay from $1,000 to $50 for a Single Pair.

Men's shoes such as the wearer may display to a critical public without fear or shame sell in New York at prices varying from $250 to $1,000 a pair.

Naturally shoes at $1,000 a pair are made to order. They are not necessarily made to fit deformed feet.

The rule of some shoemakers, like those of some other trades, is to charge all that the traffic will bear. A man with a difficult and delicate foot and plenty of money went to a fashionable shoemaker not long ago for the first time, and asked the price of shoes. The shoemaker, after a careful examination of the customer's feet and a mental calculation as to his probable willingness and ability to pay a high price, answered:

"I will make your first pair of shoes for $400. After that I will make you a pair at any time and in any style at $50."

Shoemaker and customer compromised on a price about half that proposed for the first pair of shoes, but the customer made no attempt to bring down the price of subsequent pairs. He knew $50 a pair to be the regular price of the shop, and one that in his case at least would not be departed from.

There are other shoemakers who charge wealthy and fastidious customers with troublesome feet $200 for the first pair of shoes that they have made. Some of the shoemakers who get such prices from rich customers make shoes for other customers at $10 or $12 a pair.

In the case of the customers who pay the highest price, the shoemaker makes a cast of each foot, and, of course, a last for each. He makes a special last even in the case of the customer who pays his lowest price.

Into the $50 shoes he also puts the best workmanship and materials. It is not pretended that the making of the casts and lasts costs any large proportion of the price of $50 shoes. The value of the last, however, is a considerable part of the cost of the cheapest shoes made at such a shop.

Some persons believe that the greater part of the cost of a $50 pair of shoes is a mere fad and humbug, and it is true that the purchasers of such shoes is usually women to whom money is a matter of no consequence. Some of the most expensive shoes such as cost from $200 to $1,000 for the first pair made, are ordered by hard-headed business men, who are accustomed to look pretty keenly to the price of what they buy or sell.

A few of the fashionable shoemakers have persuaded their rich customers that the most expensive shoes are worth all they cost, and by curious accident some of the most difficult feet to fit are those of the very rich. The multimillionaire who wears a plain and simple $8 B, without peculiarities of heel, toe, hollow or instep, can buy ready-made shoes along with his poor neighbor, and be as comfortably shod as the man who pays $50 for his shoes.

DANIEL WEBSTER'S HOME

Another Landmark in Washington Soon to be Only a Memory.

Still another old landmark of the Capital is to go. This time it is the old home of Daniel Webster.

The march of progress in Washington now keeps easy pace with the march of time. But it seems a pity that such old buildings, around which cluster stirring memories, should have to go. His last home in Washington and the one Webster came to love well, must have a tender interest for the student of history.

But Justice must needs have a new home. For many years the police court of the district has occupied the old church building at the corner of Sixth and D streets. Just to the east of it on D street and fronting Louisiana avenue, stands the old Webster home, which since the death of its illustrious occupant, has been used as a law building. The District government needs the ground; Congress has appropriated the money, the property has been condemned, and within a few days the old Webster home will be a mass of ruins.

A Perverse Prima Donna.

Malibran and Sontag, the two famous singers, were rivals and once east to sing in "Romeo and Juliet." Sontag was a German, very sweet and gentle, but not so quick as Malibran, who was a Spaniard. The latter, who played Romeo, did her best to puzzle, and torment poor Juliet at rehearsals and when begged by her to say on what part of the stage she was going to fall in the last scene always replied she really did not know, really could not tell. Sometimes she died in one place, sometimes in another, just as it happened. On the night of the performance Sontag meekly appeared to follow Romeo, who maliciously insisted on dying close down to the footlights in front of the curtain. Juliet fell dead by his side, and the fair corpses had to be removed by two red plush liveried footmen in good view of the audience.

Economy.

Many years ago when stoves were first beginning to take the place of open grates the daughter of a rich but rather close and eccentric old Philadelphia Quaker urged him to purchase a stove in order to keep up with the times. But the old man was obturate in adhering to the grate.

"Why, father," argued his daughter, "a stove will save half of the fuel."

"Very well, then," replied the wily old Quaker. "We had better buy two stoves and save it all."

The Coming Sorrow.

The London Tatler tells of a lady who, on the way back from her husband's funeral, called with a few sympathetic friends at a house of refreshment. Gin was fixed upon as a beverage suitable to the occasion. "Any water with yours, Em?" inquired one of the ladies of the widow as she held out the jug. "Water!" shrieked the bereaved one. "Water! Lor' humme! Ain't I got trouble enough as it is?"

How She Managed It.

They were seated in the parlor, and there was a hitch in the conversation. He seemed a trifle nervous, and she seemed a trifle bored. Finally he said:

"What a lovely evening for a walk!"

"Indeed it is," she rejoined.

"Would you like to take a walk?"

"Above all things," he assented eagerly.

"Then why don't you?" she queried.

And he did.—Chicago News.

All Explained.

A caller stopped at the house of a certain man and asked if he was at home.

"Deed an' he's not," replied the woman who answered his ring.

"Can you tell me where he is?"

"I could not."

"When did you see him last?"

"At his funeral."

"And who may you be?"

"I'm his remains," said the widow, and she closed the door.
